Immigrants Join the War on Poverty

Angelica Salas understands the immigrant experience firsthand, and has been striving to make immigration issues central to the fight against poverty. Today, as Executive Director of Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights in Los Angeles (CHIRLA), Angelica helped win in-state tuition for undocumented immigrant students and established day laborer job centers that have served as a model for the rest of the nation. Find out what drives her to continue leading the journey toward immigration reform.

Bright spots point the way forward

Periods of turmoil and change—and existential threats like the climate crisis and the effects of automation—create opportunities to reimagine the rules of the economy and advance new solutions that foreground equity in areas such as income supports.
